Insurance benefits

What is the legal basis?

According to the Federal Accident Insurance Act (UVG), it is compulsory for all employees working in Switzerland to be insured against the economical consequences of accidents and occupational illness. If your work eight hours or more a week, you are insured against occupational accidents, non-occupational accidents and occupational illnesses. Occupational accidents refer to accidents during work hours, while non-occupational accidents refer to all accidents in your free time. Occupational illnesses also equate to occupational accidents. If you work for less than eight hours a week as a part-time employee, you are insured against occupational accidents and occupational illnesses including accidents on the way to and from work. Group UVG supplementary insurance is voluntary and insures benefits in excess of compulsory accident insurance under UVG. The insurance cover is valid worldwide.

What is insured?

The insurance covers accidents, physical injuries and occupational illnesses in addition to compulsory accident insurance under UVG. Occupational illnesses are treated the same way as occupational accidents. Accidents occurring while engaged in Swiss military service and civil defence during peacetime are also covered by the insurance. Such accidents are deemed to be non-occupational accidents. Please refer to your policy for your individually agreed scope of benefits.

Additional emergency psychological help benefit

In many cases, accidents also have psychological impacts. Many of those affected do not succeed in coping with these without professional help. If you would like to take advantage of this help following an accident, trained psychologists are on hand to offer you immediate professional emergency help.

What should I do if I have an accident?

Please inform your employer of the accident immediately. Should any additional steps be necessary in your case, we will inform you or your employer when the time comes.
